Robert Francis Kilvert (3 December 1840 – 23 September 1879), always known as Francis, or Frank, was an English clergyman whose diaries reflected rural life in the 1870s, and were published over fifty years after his death. Challenges. 1996—This underground novel, said to have inspired the Oklahoma City bomber, describes how white supremacists launch an anti-government race war. Originally published in 1978, the book has recently been republished by Barricade Books in the United States. The Jewish publisher has said that he strongly opposes the content of the book, but he believes that it should be available to ... Fascinating. I work for Records of Early Drama (REED) — we publish collections of pre-1642 documents, and I was very interested to see how effective MALLETT was in dealing with a linguistically complex text like Martha Ballard's diary. John Adams (30 October 1735 – 4 July 1826) was an American lawyer, author, statesman, and diplomat. He served as the second President of the United States (1797–1801), the first Vice President (1789–1797), and as a Founding Father was a leader of American independence from Great Britain. Adams was a political theorist in the Age of Enlightenment who promoted republicanism and a strong ...
